

Australian Earth Laws Alliance and The Simon Kerr Perspective present:

Music for a Warming World

... where science, art and hope converge

You are invited to the final public session of the Australian Earth Law's Alliance workshop, 'Let's talk about consumption'.

A multimedia concert of original music like no other, telling the story of climate change

4.30 to 6.00pm Friday 4th March, 2016

Rm 104 Melbourne Law School, UoM

Climate change never sounded so good!

Prof Christine Parker (Law), along with songwriter, guitarist and climate thinker, Dr Simon Kerr, and his band, have developed this challenging, entertaining and warmhearted journey into climate change, speaking honestly about the science, the inevitable changes that will come and what we can do. It is also about the joy of being human in the face of humanity's greatest challenge, enjoying this moment of music, community and hope for the future

'A new way of thinking about climate change'

(Prof Rod Keenan, Forest and Ecosystem Science, The University of Melbourne)

'If you've been in despair, thinking what the hell can I do about climate change .. see Simon Kerr's 'Music for a Warming World' (Mal Webb, Australian Music Icon)

'So fresh and innovative, I can't speak highly enough about the show'

(Fan from a recent Brisbane show))

'They tackle the overpowering zeitgeist of climate change, turning it into climate courage. See it and your hope and energy could be restored'

(Prof Adrian Evans, Faculty of Law, Monash University)

No entry fee but there will be an opportunity to make a donation to the musicians

For more information contact Prof Christine Parker

(christine.parker@unimelb.edu.au)

www.simonkerrmusic.net/music-for-a-warming-planet/